Aleteia.org
joining to promote the “Interreligious Match for Peace”

Aleteia.org is a global Catholic information network sharing resources on matters of faith, life and society.

Each day, Aleteia.org goes to the heart of the most widely discussed and sought out issues in the digital world (on the web and social media), with a view to fostering understanding and encouraging respectful and fruitful dialogue. To accomplish this, in addition to the work of its editorial team, Aleteia also and especially relies its many partners, who contribute significantly to increasing the value and merit of the various topics addressed.

Aleteia.org, whose aim is to create a more dynamic Christian presence in the world of media, today already relies on a network of over 1600 partners from every part of the world - including media outlets, movements and Catholic institutions.

With over two million unique users, Aleteia.org, publishes in six languages: English, French, Italian, Spanish, Portuguese and Arabic.

Aleteia.org is joining in promoting the “Interreligious Match for Peace” initiative (matchforpeace.org) because, together with Pope Francis, we are convinced that the role of the media is to promote a “culture of encounter” as a basis for peace (Message for the 48th World Communications Day, June 1, 2014).
